WA team reaches out with “Bulolo for Jesus”

BULOLO, PAPUA NEW GUINEA

A team of 10 people from Merredin and Narembeen churches in Western Australia, led by Pastor James Alaggapan and his wife, Jean, conducted an outreach program in Bulolo in the Morobe Mission from August 6 to 18.

Pastor Kove Tau, Morobe Mission president, and a group of Pathfinders welcomed the team to the town, and the opening night of the program was attended by more than 400 people. Over the course of the “Bulolo for Jesus” program, the number of attendees grew to more than 6000 by the final night.

Team members Kerrin and Natasha

Hardy conducted a kids club program for the children of the area. An average of 350 children attended every day and enjoyed the time of songs, games, puppets, crafts and presentations about Jesus.

Pastor Alaggapan made a special appeal to “rascals”—the Papua New Guinean term for gang members—attending the meetings, outlining God’s plan for their lives. This resulted in a man, named David, relating his story of life as a “rascal” and his desire to change to Pastor Alaggapan, before requesting baptism. He was baptised at the conclusion of the outreach program.

Have you ever been wounded by a friend, relative, or church member?

You don't need to have been a contestant on a television show to know how it feels to be "voted off the island" by people you believed were your friends. Power plays are not uncommon in church circles. Character assassination? —Yes, that happens too, and many seem eager to believe the worst.

Most of us will experience frenemy fire at some point. But how should we respond? How should a victim cope with the rejection, hurt, anger, and confusion? Popular author Jim Hohnberger writes from personal experience to help you and others to not only survive such an ordeal, but with God's help to thrive! Sound impossible?

GSC hosts iGeneration concert for ADRA Appeal volunteers

SYDNEY, NEW SOUTH WALES

More than $A24,500 was raised for the Adventist Development and Relief Agency (ADRA) Australia by young people in the Greater Sydney Conference (GSC) in August, by “freezing” for poverty in Darling Harbour, running in the City2Surf, doorknocking and organising a school concert.

To launch the ADRA Appeal in GSC on August 2, around 260 people gathered at Piermont Bridge, Curtain Green and the Chinese Gardens at Darling Harbour to “freeze” in various poses for four to 10 minutes as affluent people walked past. The poses would end when ADRA volunteers wearing T-shirts with a slogan that read “ADRA releases lives from poverty” touched them. Bystanders found the performances interesting, and it provided an opportunity for the public to contribute to the ADRA Appeal and learn more about ADRA’s work with those who live in poverty.

Students from Sydney Adventist College (SAC) raised almost $A4000 in four hours when they took the ADRA Appeal door-to-door in their local area on August 14, and students from Mountain View Adventist College (MVAC) took the initiative to hold a concert on August 24 to raise funds for ADRA.

The iGeneration campaign rewarded young people, aged 13 to 30, who had worked to raise $A50 or more for the annual ADRA Appeal, with a concert on August 30. More than 550 young people from GSC, as well as some from the north New South Wales and Victorian conferences, celebrated the event at SAC, where Brothers in Christ were the feature group. Working with MVAC students, school chaplain Jean-Pierre Martinez wrote and produced an iGeneration theme song, “Change the world.” He also sold CDs to raise funds for ADRA.

Malcolm Rea, director of ADRA Services for GSC, says, “The high level of participation at these youth events demonstrates the commitment of our young people to help ADRA fight poverty. Our youth are to be commended for becoming advocates for the poor.”

An iGeneration concert for people in the Victorian Conference will be held on October 25 at the Arrow on Swanston in Melbourne.—RECORD staff/Malcolm Rea

Victorian students grow through “Vetamorphus”

HEALSVILLE, VICTORIA

Students from Heritage College and Nunawading Christian College in Victoria have grasped a spiritual opportunity to take their traditional Bible-focused subject offered at the schools to a more practical level.

Students in senior years at Adventist schools in Victoria usually complete the Victorian Certificate of Education subjects of “Text and traditions” or “Religion and society.” This year, seven students are enrolled in a fully-accredited Certificate III in Christian Ministry called “Vetamorphus.”

The students recently attended a retreat held at Jumbunna Lodge in the Yarra Valley. Here they focused on experiencing and evaluating different Christian communities and ministries, as well as spending a Sabbath afternoon doing street ministry with the Victorian Conference’s Adventist Development and Relief Agency department in the poorer areas of Melbourne. Victorian Conference Adventist Education schools development officer Tania Calais says, “It was an eye-opening, humbling and deeply spiritual experience for all, and it challenged the students to ensure they show God’s love in a practical way to those around them.”

The “Vetamorphus” course focuses on small-group Bible study readings of the New Testament, journaling, regular involvement in the Christian community, mentoring, retreats, involvement in a “live-in mission” and a major practical ministry project. Mrs Calais says, “While it’s fantastic the students will achieve a recognised qualification at the end of the year for this course, what’s even more wonderful is the spiritual journey and growth that’s taken place for them.” —RECORD staff/Tania Calais

Church leaders respond to market decline

SILVER SPRING, MARYLAND, USA

Market declines won't affect the Adventist Church's investment strategy, say financial officers at the General Conference (GC). However, the state of the global economy could have an impact on tithes and offerings.

Currently, the GC's finance department is not considering a change in investment strategy in the light of recent economic declines—a move they say is “prudent,” considering their long-term view.

As major American investment banks have folded during the global credit crunch, resulting largely from a slump in the American housing market, church officials plan to continue a 20- to 30-year outlook for managing the church's retirement fund investments.

The church's ministry and ability to launch new initiatives would be most affected by any decrease in tithes and offerings, said Dr Roy Ryan, associate treasurer and investment manager for the GC.

“We're monitoring the situation,” Dr Ryan said. “While it is fair to say the budget being prepared for recommendation to Annual Council next month is not aggressive, we do feel it preserves the ability of the church to move forward with its mission.”

In a leadership meeting at GC headquarters on September 18, Dr Ryan said the American economy could be in “unchartered territory,” and added, “A widely-held view is that the housing market has to stabilise and that just hasn't happened at this point.”

Until then, he said the church would continue its current investment strategy. “We feel the portfolios of the church's investments are prudently invested,” Dr Ryan said.

GC treasurer Robert Lemon says he thinks the market will recover as it has after previous downturns, albeit not as quickly. “I'm fearful that after this particular drop—because it has such wide underpinning on housing and the availability of credit—the market will be slower to come back,” Mr Lemon said.

GC president Pastor Jan Paulsen encouraged church leaders, saying “None of us is a prophet . . . but the Lord said, ‘Do not worry about tomorrow.’ That to me is a very fundamental statement. It's not light-hearted. We'll move forward in obedience to the Lord and do the best we can in mission.”

WA Conference hosts discipleship workshop

PERTH, WESTERN AUSTRALIA

The Western Australian Conference (WAC) hosted a “Discipleship Under Construction” workshop weekend for church members in the Perth area from August 15 to 17, at the Victoria Park Adventist church.

Pastor Roger Govender, director of Sabbath School and Personal Ministries for the Australian Union Conference, and Pastor Glenn Townend, WAC president, led out in workshops that provided attendees with ideas and skills to allow Sabbath school classes and small groups to create disciples.

Pastors Govender and Townend stepped in to help after Pastor Gary Swanson, director of Sabbath School and Personal Ministries for the General Conference, had to withdraw.

Those who attended the meetings said they appreciated the workshops and are keen to test the new skills in their own churches.

Pastor Townend says, “I believe we'll see the quality of small- group Bible teaching improve and include creative variety. I'm sure these Sabbath school classes and groups will grow.”—NewsWest

◆ On September 21, Fulton College, Fiji, had a special “development day.” As the lease has expired on the current 200-acre farm site, all staff and students were invited to assist in clearing land for farming on the Fulton campus site. Most students and staff turned out to assist in this project. The land owners have refused to renew the lease, which expired this September. This is a different group of land owners from those who have not renewed the lease for the College campus site. Several acres of land were cleared and planted with tapioca, which will be harvested in the first semester of next year.

◆ On September 11, the Blue Hills College, NSW, Primary and Secondary choirs took first place in the choral sections of the 96th Annual Eisteddfod, held in Lismore. The choirs had been practising their repertoire for months and performed at a very high level on the day. The Primary choir, conducted by Janine Bougaardt, received a mark of 85 per cent and much positive feedback. The Secondary choir, conducted by Andrew Harris, performed “Blessed Assurance,” “I Can Only Imagine,” “Breath of Heaven” and “Waltzing Matilda.” They topped their section with a mark of 98 per cent. The adjudicator remarked that it was “a beautifully refined performance—confident and musically sensitive—spontaneous without losing control.” There are plans for the Secondary choir to do some recording early next term, says Mr Harris, as well as touring for a weekend to a regional church to take the whole service. The Eisteddfod performances were recorded and will hopefully be posted online. The choirs have also received local media coverage, with their photos being placed in Lismore's Northern Star.

Getting involved in stewardship

ERICK VAN SCHOONHOVEN, VIC

I was interested in "Planet stewardship" (Letters, September 20) and totally agree with the writer that Christians have, for far too long, "ignored environmental concerns." Many Christians interested in this issue may wonder how to get involved. It would be very helpful if the writer would share with us how he was able to put theory into practice. For instance, did he start an organisation and how did he go about it? Or did he join an existing one and, if so, which one(s) and why?

More on music

JIM ZYDERVELD, SA

"To God's praise" (Letters, August 2) was right—there have been many letters in RECORD about music in our church and here's another one. If I read it fairly, the implication of this letter is that there is a single choice of music that will be both harmonious and worthy of God.

The writer says at campmeeting, we are mostly fragmented in our praise. Maybe we could come closer together if we added another facet into the discussion. Internationally-renowned psychiatrist William Glasser, founder of Reality/Choice Therapy, concluded there are five basic needs that motivate human behaviour, and among them is "fun." Fun is serious business!

Music changes with the times. It seems to me that music has always been a reflection of its age. Hillsong has been a major contributor in recent years, yet a mature teen said to me recently, "Even Hillsong is becoming same-same—and predictable!" Our options will continue to evolve.

Our music can be a mix of sober, grand, reflective, quiet and loud—and fun. If I apply Glasser's conclusion to church music appropriately, we can include a fun element into our musical repertoire, increasing our enjoyment of worship and our apparent harmony in musical choice.

Another sermon suggestion

JOHN WADDELL, NSW

You cannot recall a sermon about the poor ("2103," Editorial, September 20) and I can't recall one about cruelty to animals. God cares about the sparrow and Jesus for the lost sheep. Can we picture Jesus working in today's abattoirs? Or beside battery hen cages the size of a RECORD page, in which tortured birds can't even stretch their wings for a lifetime?

We don't need any animal products for our health. Continuing to use them means we consider extreme suffering of other creatures to be secondary to a taste preference.

Note: Views in Letters do not necessarily represent those of the editors or the denomination. Letters should be less than 250 words, and writers must include their name, address and phone number. All letters are edited to meet space and literary requirements, but the author's original meaning will not be changed. Not all letters received are published. See masthead (page 3) for contact details.

Nursing heals lives.

Avondale's Bachelor of Nursing degree prepares students with the knowledge, skills and attitudes required for nurse registration. Clinical experience is gained in a wide range of health care areas including one of Sydney's leading private hospitals, the Sydney Adventist Hospital (SAH), providing students with exceptional training for a nursing career. The Bachelor of Nursing course aims to equip students with high ethical standards, critical thinking, problem-solving skills, and sound knowledge combined with safe, competent care.

There is a high demand for registered nurses in the health system in public, private and community settings. Opportunities for employment are diverse and span work in local, national and international environments.

Employment may be in areas such as:

- medical, surgical or critical care areas
- maternal or paediatric health
- mental health
- international hospitals and communities
- aged care and community health
- perioperative
- rural/remote nursing
- health related industries such as medical products and services
- education, administration and management.

As a registered nurse the opportunity is yours to diversify into other health areas and/or specialise in a particular area.
