

CONFERENCE ON

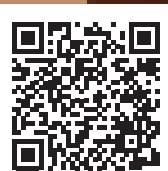

Wholistic Healing

Challenges and Opportunities for the Church

October 12–14, 2023

Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary

Andrews University, Berrien Springs MI

REGISTER NOW: andrews.edu/sem/conferences/wholistic

This conference will address fundamental health and healing issues the church is facing today, including mental, emotional, social, family and much more. While God is constantly working to heal people on the deepest level, His healing power calls the church to wholeness in our brokenness.

A complete schedule, abstracts and presenter bios are available on the conference webpage. Pre-registered guests outside of the Michiana area who cannot attend in person will receive a Zoom link to view the conference.

FEATURED PRESENTERS

Peter Landless, executive director, International Commission for the Prevention of Alcoholism and Drug Dependency (ICPA)/director, Health Ministries Department, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

Terry Shaw, president and chief executive officer, AdventHealth

Pavel Goia, editor, Ministry Magazine/associate director, Ministerial Association, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

Barbara Hernandez, professor of medical education and director, Office of Physician Vitality, Loma Linda University School of Medicine/adjunct professor, Department of Graduate Religious Studies, Fordham University

Nestor Bruno, director of mission and ministry, Kettering Health/director, MinistryCare.org

Elias Brasil de Souza, director, Biblical Research Institute, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

SPONSORED BY:

Adventist Health Ministries at the General Conference, AdventHealth, Andrews University, Kettering Health, Loma Linda University, Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary

Ivan Williams, director, Ministerial Department, North American Division of Seventh-day Adventists

In addition to 20 other presenters from the General Conference, AdventHealth, Loma Linda University, Andrews University and Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary.