SUNDAY MORNING BREAKOUT SESSIONS

9.00am

Don Livesay

The A, B, C, and D of productive spiritual leadership

It is not enough for leaders to be right. This workshop will explore leadership processes that seek for the best spiritual outcomes for all involved. Chan Shun, Garber.

Duane Covrig

The beast or the lamb: Which leadership style is best?

This workshop compares the metaphors of the beast and lamb of Revelation as they relate to leadership. Chan Shun 108.

Peter Bath

Leadership: An inside job with outside consequences

This workshop investigates how leaders shape congregations, schools, and community agencies through their leadership style. It aims to help participants develop a healthy and vibrant working culture. Chan Shun 208.

Dave Gemmell

Leadership fuel: Spiritual and political savvy in the congregation

What is leadership fuel? Do you have it? Where can you get it? How can you use it wisely? Find out how leadership fuel can propel a small, medium or large church congregation. Chan Shun 209.

Juan Prestol

The chairs of Adventist leadership

A description of the tensions existing between leaders and followers in the Seventh-day Adventist Church, along with proposed solutions. Chan Shun 210.

10.30am

Pardon Mwansa

Following the Holy Spirit when spiritual leaders see things differently—exploring Acts 15:36-41

Leaders are called to lead the church in implementing the gospel commission of Matthew 28: 19-20. In pursuing this commission, leaders may have differences in their approaches to mission work and ministry, creating conflict. This workshop explores lessons from the ministry of Paul and Barnabas that can help leaders work together. Chan Shun, Garber.

Barbara Livesay

Creating a positive environment for leadership effectiveness

A positive climate and effective leadership are foundational to a healthy church, school or business. This workshop offers an interactive approach to developing a Christ-filled ministry through good leadership which builds a positive environment. Chan Shun 108.

John Grys

Temptations of a spiritual leader

Examining the movement of Jesus into the wilderness, this session outlines the temptations that leaders in religious organizations may face, and explores ways of navigating hindrances, helping participants gain a richer understanding of the power of the grace of God. Chan Shun 208.

Ed Witzel

Leading change in the church planting context

This workshop explores John Kotter's theory on leading change in the context of the church.—in particular focusing on the personal story of a church plant called H20 Living Source, including how leaders moved it from the initial planning stages into a thriving community of faith. Chan Shun 209.

Harold Lee

Leadership—The journey of spiritual development

Spiritual leaders—clergy and laity alike—are called to be spiritual leaders by assisting others to grow in their relationship with God and to successfully navigate their spiritual journey. This calls for a disciplined Christian community which emphasizes holistic spirituality, nurturing the mind, body and spirit. Spiritual leaders move those they lead to a deeper level of faith in Christ and service. Chan Shun 210.

MONDAY AFTERNOON PAPERS AND WORKSHOPS

3.15-4.15pm

PAPERS

Vicki Specht-Nelson, Carla Gober

Emotional and spiritual intelligence: Implications for Adventist education.

Samuel Garbi

Emotional safety: A foundational prerequisite to spiritual growth.

Recognize the critical link between safety and spiritual growth.

Participate in a “taste of safety” and increase your personal awareness and growth. Chan Shun 210.

Jeffrey Brown

Beyond equality: Spiritual leadership in home and church.

Rearranging the distorted hierarchy of leadership. Develop a new understanding of leadership, followership, and discipleship in the context of the family and emotional intelligence. Buller Hall 251.

Shawn Collins

The emotional intelligence profiles and cognitive measures of nurse anesthesia students in the Southeastern United States.

An exploration of the relationship between emotional intelligence and personal and academic factors of nurse anesthesia students at three points in their program, and the relationship of these to clinical scores and national certification examination scores. Buller Hall 250.

Linda Caviness

Brain, heart and learning

A discussion of brain/body anatomy and physiology in the context of social and emotional intelligence, reflecting on data that provides new perspectives on stress levels, heart-brain coherence, resilience, bullying, etc. Buller Hall 208.

WORKSHOPS

Michaela Lawrence Jeffrey, Krystal Barnes

The healing story: Constructing student leadership.

Various factors contribute to students' increased inability to handle life, and this can result in insecurity about leadership. Discover how you can redirect students (or anyone) onto a constructive path to confident leadership through a spiritual approach. Chan Shun, Garber.

Tracy Weber, Nathan Regier

Drama and the adaptive cycle of change: Competencies, dynamics and strategies for compassionate leaders.

An interactive session where participants will be introduced to, and experientially explore, strategies and application for compassionate leadership in the adaptive cycles of change. HPAC auditorium.
